

Many of the papers and symposia presented at the IVth European Congress of Psychology, held in Athens, July 2-5 1995, are featured in this volume. Almost all aspects of contemporary psychology are considered; theory, research, practice, and teaching. Following on from the aims of the congress, this volume reflects the distinctness of European psychology and includes work from psychologists currently teaching, researching and practicing in Europe. A number of Americans also participated, including Professor Bandura of Stanford and Dr Ray Fowler, CEO of the American Psychological Association. Their contributions to the congress are included in the book.
